> Robert P. Wiemann, Director Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, Nebraska Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a computer and peripherals distributor. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as a product manager. As required by statute, the petition is accompanied by an individual labor certification approved by the Department of Labor. The director determined that the petitioner had not established that it had the financial ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage as of the priority date of the visa petition and continuing.

On appeal, counsel submits a brief.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary or seasonal nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) states in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be either in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

Eligibility in this matter hinges on the petitioner's ability to pay the wage offered as of the petition's priority date, which is the date the request for labor certification was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the Department of Labor, and continuing. Here, the petition's priority date is February 5, 2001. The beneficiary's salary as stated on the labor certification is $58,000.00 per annum.

Counsel submitted copies of the petitioner's bank statements for the period from January through April 2002, a copy of the beneficiary's Internal Revenue Service (IRS) Form W-2 which showed he was paid $47,410.00 in 2001, a copy of the petitioner's IRS Form W-3 for 2001, and a copy of the petitioner's IRS Form 1120 for 2001. The Form 1120 showed a taxable income of -$5,025. Schedule L reflected that the petitioner's current assets of $73,298 and current liabilities of $64,869 yielded net current assets of $8,429.

In determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage, examine the net income figure reflected on petitioner's federal income tax return, without consideration of depreciation or other expenses. Reliance on federal income tax returns as a basis for determining a petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is well-established by both CIS and judicial precedent. Elatos Restaurant Corp. v. Sava, 632 F. Supp. 1049, 1054 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) (citing Tongatapu Woodcraft Hawaii, Ltd. v. Feldman, 736 F.2d 1305 (9th Cir. 1984); see also Chi-Feng Chang v. Thornburgh, 719 F.Supp. 532 (N.D. Texas 1989); K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F.Supp. 1080 (S.D.N.Y. 1985); Ubeda v. Palmer, 539 F.Supp. 647 (N.D. Ill. 1982), aff'd, 703 F.2d 571 (7th Cir. 1983).

The director determined that the evidence submitted did not establish that the petitioner had the ability to pay the proffered wage and denied the petition accordingly.

On appeal, counsel argues that the "Petitioner's bank balance together with wage already paid to Beneficiary Meets the Burden of ability to pay wage."

Counsel's argument is not persuasive. The bank statements contained in the record cover only a four month period in 2002 and do not reflect a complete picture of the petitioner's financial status. Moreover, the figure given as cash ($21,018) has already been included in the calculation of net current assets discussed above.

The petitioner's Form 1120 for 2001 shows a taxable income of $5,025. The petitioner could not pay a salary of $58,000.00 a year from this figure. Even though the petitioner paid the beneficiary a salary in 2001, the difference between the salary paid and the taxable income shown on the tax return does not cover the proffered wage of $58,000.00. It also cannot be concluded that the petitioner's net current assets could cover this difference of $10,590.

Counsel further argues that Matter of Sonegawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg. Comm. 1967) is analogous to the instant petition.

Matter of Sonegawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg. Comm. 1967) relates to petitions filed during uncharacteristically unprofitable difficult years but only within a framework of profitable or successful years. The petitioning entity in Sonegawa had been in business for over 11 years and routinely earned a gross annual income of about $100,000.00. During the year in which the petition was filed in that case, the petitioner changed business locations, and paid rent on both the old and new locations for five months. There were large moving costs and also a period of time when the petitioner was unable to do regular business. Regional Commissioner determined that the petitioner's prospects for a resumption of successful business operations were well established. The petitioner was a fashion designer whose work had been featured in Time and Look magazines. Her clients included Miss Universe, movie actresses, and society matrons. petitioner's clients had been included in the lists of the best dressed California women. The petitioner lectured on fashion design at design and fashion shows throughout the United States and at colleges and universities in California. The Regional Commissioner's determination in Sonegawa was based in part on the petitioner's sound business reputation and outstanding reputation as a couturiere.

Counsel has provided no evidence which establishes that unusual circumstances existed in this case which parallel those in Sonegawa, nor has it been established that 2001 was an uncharacteristically unprofitable year for the petitioner.

Accordingly, after a review of the record, it is concluded that the petitioner has not established that it had sufficient available funds to pay the salary offered as of the priority date of the petition and continuing to the present.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
